Aloha,

Makapo's Ohana would like to invite your company to experience something truly different — the Corporate Ohana Builder, a team experience that combines the excitement of outrigger paddling with the power of inclusion and collaboration. This isn't your typical day of team building. It's a 3- to 4-hour adventure on the water that strengthens communication, builds trust, and inspires unity — all through the lens of disability inclusion and the Hawaiian tradition of ohana (family).

Your team will learn to paddle together in traditional outrigger canoes, guided by Makapo's expert coaches who specialize in creating safe, fun, and empowering experiences for people of all abilities. The program includes engaging on-land activities, an inclusive paddling session, and a delicious catered lunch overlooking the Newport Aquatic Center — making for a memorable day your employees will talk about long after the last paddle stroke.

Organizations such as the Anaheim Ducks, OC Vibe, UC Irvine Disability Services, and King's Hawaiian have already taken part in this unforgettable experience, joining a growing list of companies committed to building stronger, more inclusive teams.

Whether you're looking to boost morale, improve communication, or give back to the community, the Corporate Ohana Builder delivers an experience that unites purpose with play.
